Stainless steel Aqua Lounge

A new way to enjoy... water

More than a pool ... a state of mind

We've designed and developed the aqua lounge so that you can relax and enjoy the water in a calm, tranquil environment whether indoors or out.

The aqua lounge is a place to relax and have fun. Here, there's no noisy bubble machine or pre-moulded seats forcing you into position. The aqua lounge has been designed with ergonomics in mind, breaking down conventional barriers and encouraging discussion and interaction between bathers and the people around them (bench and bar position for the Aqualounge model).

A convenient and ... ingenious system

The aqua lounge is the result of a long research and development phase, enabling us to bring you an extremely flexible product which is fully assembled on site (each part fits through a normal sized doorway).

The raised, free-standing design eliminates the need for the noisy, messy construction site associated with traditional pools. For some types of installation, you won't even need a concrete foundation.

The flat floor ensures total freedom of movement within the tub. Thanks to the strength and resilience of the water-tight stainless steel basin (which doesn't even need any welding on-site thanks to our patented system), you can install a range of equipment such as an aquabike or underwater fitness systems.

A modular design ... that adapts to you

The use of high-quality materials such as stainless steel, exotic wood and glass are crucial to our vision of the aqua lounge. We wanted to get as far away as possible from the traditional industrially-moulded free-standing pools. This is why we've developed two models, both of which are available in several different lengths: Aqualounge (a bench and a bar) and Allure (two benches). These will fit right into your home and interior design scheme thanks to a wide range of siding and textures, which you can modify as often as you want.*

Choose from over 90 different finishes and create the perfect ambience for your home.

*a wide range of options are available. For more information, please call us at 09 84 48 35 94.
